Kalol blast: Wary govt insists on ONGC nod for building plan OK

GANDHINAGAR: A gas pipeline explosion in an upscale residential society in Kalol near Gandhinagar eight months ago has led the state government to become hyper-vigilant over the issue. In fact, Gujarat's chief town planner issued directives to all municipal town planners and those employed with urban development authority to mandatorily seek ONGC NOCs as a prerequisite for passing building plans. Although the provision is not new, the incident at Kalol in which two houses collapsed and killed two persons, has made it obligatory for developers to seek several permissions, which is reportedly having a cascading effect on construction activity in the state. It is learnt that the construction plan clearance of Kamavati Club's new resort located in Mulsana village in Gandhinagar district has come under a cloud due to this. Sources sources said that the new club's tentative construction plan is awaiting clearance from the Ahmedabad Urban Development Authority (AUDA) as an ONGC pipeline permissions before necessary. Sources said that despite making provisions for leaving enough space around the pipeline in accordance with the norms, their plan awaits clearances. AUDA CEO A B Gor claimed that AUDA is yet to receive a detailed plan from the club. "The rule is clear. We require a detailed plan to initiate the NOC process with ONGC. Till now our office has not received a detailed plan from Kamavati club," said Gor. State chief town planner B S Shah said that provision for checking underground oil or gas pipelines and electric lines has been in force for long. "Something it was not followed by the developers, so after the Kalol incident, we have categorically directed all the concerned town planning officers not to issue any permissions before necessary. NOC is obtained," Shah said. Industry experts said that gas pipeline clearance issue has put several real estate projects in a fix. Already 11 real estate projects in Vastrapur as well as two projects in Nikol, from where the ONGC line passes, are on hold, AMC sources said. A minimum of 12 to 15 meters of buffer space on either side of an underground ONGC line has to be left unconstructed as per existing guidelines. "The delay will be four months for getting an ONGC clearance. Once a citizen approaches a municipal body or an urban development authority for plan approvals, the municipal authority has to independently seek an NOC from ONGC and so does the citizen, if there is an ONGC line nearby.

No need for goons, anti-land grab law serves purpose, says Gujarat high court

AHMEDABAD: On misuse of recently enacted anti-land grabbing laws followed by invocation of PASA in private property disputes, Gujarat high court on Wednesday said that there is no need for people to hire goons to vacate properties because the law serves the purpose.

Justice Paresh Upadhyay made this scathing remark while pronouncing a judgment on petitions filed by four persons from Amreli district, who were detained under Prevention of Anti-Social Activities Act (PASA) after being booked under the Gujarat Land Grabbing (Prohibition) Act with regard to a property dispute.

While quashing PASA orders, the judge warned the state government that siding with parties in private property disputes may someday land it in an embarrassing position. He also pointed the dangers of corrupt practices in land grabbing laws are likely to bring in. The HC order reads, "The enthusiasm on the part of the state authorities to throw the weight of the State in favour of one of the contesting parties, in the matters of private property disputes, may land the State in an embarrassing position one day." The court further said, "In the property disputes, the financial stakes from both sides may be very high. This may also lead to temptation to one of the parties, for soliciting help from the revenue and the police officers, for the considerations less known to law."

The court further said, "In the property disputes, the financial stakes from both sides may be very high. This may also lead to temptation to one of the parties, for soliciting help from the revenue and the police officers, for the considerations less known to law. These are the dangers which need to be kept in view by the high authorities of the State." While reading out the passage from his order, Justice Upadhyay commented, "You (the government) will be put in an embarrassing position, if you really feel embarrassed at all." He went ahead, "People have now stopped hiring goons. File FIR, invoke PASA and get the possession of land. People are behind bars even for registered sale deeds." The judge has been criticizing indiscriminate use of land grabbing laws followed by PASA. In this case, which involved two women hutment dwellers also, the court was critical of the district administration's use of detention powers.

The court cited the affidavit of the government, in which the reason why PASA was resorted to and why a woman was not exterminated was delineated. He told the court that if the woman was exterminated, she could have still obtained legal aid from a lawyer, which could continue her illegal activities.
